The Annual Fair Proves To Be A Great Success

Fair Board Stages "Come-back" After Lapse of Years; Record Entry Lists in Many Sections of the Exhibition; Gate Receipts Well Ahead of Former Years

Searching to be proud of something to remember for many years, will be the 1927 Wainwright Agricultural Exhibition held on Wednesday last.

In point of number of entries it eclipsed any of its predecessors in all most every class of the show, and the large attendance added greatly to the whole affair.

Secretary Bill Scott was a busy man the whole day through and President Baker and his competent committee aided worked tooth and nail to "put-it-over".

The new exhibition building which had been erected was filled to overflowing with the finest of exhibits and although in some instances the late news of the season has retarded the usual abnormal growth of garden truck seed, everything on display was of a real high quality.

One feature of the affair which was highly noticeable, however was the absence of the Town Band this being explained by the fact that the directors were desirous of "going easy" on expenditures, as after a lapse of four years the fair had to "feel its way" to some extent. However, we are glad to know that as the association pulled out well on the right side of the ledger such an omission is not likely to be figured in the future.

A big feature of this year's show was the "Machinery Row" where all kinds of farming implements and tractors were on display and demonstration at the capable hands of our implement men among whom were Messrs. T. H. Hough, Hough, Tommy Blinn, H. Messer, Frank Fish, and others. These all exhibited machinery in working form and the demonstrations given attracted the farmers in crowds.

With regard to the inner man, Mr. Geo. McKee was "there" with the "open" and other concessions drew their quota of fair visitors.

The big attraction to many in the afternoon was the horse racing and the baseball games, and these events were pulled off closely according to schedule.

The winners of the purses were—Open run—A. Roberts, 1; A. Tetter, 2.

Pony race—Roberts, 1; A. Harper, 2.

Green race—H. Murray, 1; Roberts, 2.

The judges in the various classes who all had quite a task presented them in arriving at conclusions were—Horses, Mr. A. Galt; cattle, sheep and swine, Mr. Chas. Hall; poultry, Mr. Geo. Davey; grain, seeds, roots and vegetables, Messrs. R. Dunn and A. Peterson; domestic manufatures, Messrs. H. Hough and G. Davey; plants, Mr. Peterson; and ladies' work, Messrs. D. Dods and Dawson. Messrs. Steve Bowerman and Art Uren took charge of the horse racing.

The following is a full list of prize winners:

DRESSMAKING CLASSES HELD AT GREENSHIELDS

At the U.F.W.A. meeting in the restaurant on Saturday last a very interesting talk was given by Mrs. Postant, dressmaker, Battle River. Legislation regarding health property and the Mother's Compensation Act was reviewed and a brief report was given of the wheat pool rally.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker. The dressmaking demonstration will be given at Greenshields August 12th to 15th to which everyone interested in sewing is welcome. Bring along your material and Mrs. Rummell the demonstrator, will help you.

PLAY "THE WHEEL" MAKES POWERFUL MOTION PICTURE

If you like your thrills and drama blended nicely and in pleasant doses "The Wheel" at the Theatre on Friday and Saturday will fill your requirements to a "T" according to advance reports on this William Fox screen version of John Golden's stage success.

Dealing with the lure and vice of gambling Winchell Smith has shown in very effective fashion the ends to which a man may go who is forced to the wall hit by the through losses to the corbels of chance.

Do not take from this, however, that "The Wheel" is a bitter, gruesome narrative of concentrated grief. It is a highly dramatic picture with a story that will interest every type of picture fan, be he man woman or child. There is pictured the colorful atmosphere of the race track, the dramatic tension of the roulette wheel and the card table, and intertwined is a love story that is beautiful and romantic.

The cast of "The Wheel" is headed by Harrison Ford and Claire Adams both of whom are said to do some of the finest work of their careers.

"The Wheel" is one of the John Golden unit of plays for which William Fox acquired the screen rights recently for a cash consideration of one million dollars among other things "Lightnin'" "Seventh Heaven" and "The First Year" are some of the others.

THROWN FROM BUGGY SUSTAINS BROKEN LIMB

On Thursday evening last while Mrs. F. Pointon was riding to her home some twelve miles north of town with Mrs. Job James, from some unknown cause the team took fright and bolted with the result that the two ladies were thrown from the buggy. Mrs. Pointon was found to be badly injured when picked up and Dr. Wallace who was immediately summoned by phone, discovered that the patient was suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg as well as other cuts and bruises. Mrs. James happily escaped from serious injury other than bruises and shock. Mrs. Pointon was given all relief possible by the doctor and then taken to hospital in Edmonton where she still is.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Ernie McLeod, of Heath, who was in the hospital in Edmonton has now returned home feeling much better.

WEDDING BELLS

OSTERHOUT—MUCHLESON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Wainwright United Church on Tuesday afternoon August 2, when Addel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Osterhout of Irma and Arthur, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Muchleson of Edmonton were united in holy matrimony by Rev. Mr. Pybus.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and the bridegroom's mother and the bride's mother signed the register as witnesses.

The bride looked charming in green georgette and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the bride's home in Irma where supper was served. They then proceeded to Mr. Osterhout's farm north of the city where they will make their home. Over a hundred friends from Wainwright, Irma, and other surrounding districts of Pasadena, Assiniboia, and Alberta awaited them there and showered the bride with gifts.

BEAVER TRAPPING BANNED IN NORTH

It has been announced by the provincial Game Branch that no trapping of beaver in Alberta north of township 69 will be permitted during the coming season, and that the closed season for beaver which has been enforced in this area for the past 20 years will continue for the coming fall and winter as the beaver supply in the province has been steadily growing less South of the line of the township permits will be issued as usual in cases where found desirable through damage to farm property by local colonies of beaver.

MID-CANADA WILL START DRILLING ON LEASE RIGHT AWAY

The Baxter lake area, where the Mid-Canada Oil have already one derrick standing will be the scene of the first hole to be drilled by this company within the next week.

In an ordinary column there are 10,000 pieces of type; there are even possible wrong positions for each letter; there are 70,000 chances to make an error, and millions of possible transpositions. In this one sentence, "To be or not to be" by transposition alone it has been figured out 2,759,002 errors can be made.

Newspaper people from the "devil" up to the boss, and other high officials are merely human and liable to err. Don't be nosing around for errors, but read for the information you can get and the good you derive. You'll find errors enough in your daily life without having to hunt for them in a newspaper—Blue Island.

IN MEMORIAM

In ever loving memory of Charles Gideon Isen who died August 8th, 1924. Ever remembered.

His cheery ways; his smiling face, are pleasant to recall.

He had a cheering word for each, and dying, loved them all.

SONS & DAUGHTERS

Alberta automobile owners are strongly warned to be on their guard against fake solicitors of so-called "Gyp" motor clubs.

CAR OWNERS WARNED AGAINST "GYPS" MOTOR CLUBS

It is pointed out that these "gyp" solicitors claim to be representatives of the recognized motor clubs and obtain sums far in excess of the membership fees in the A.M.A. and other associations. In most cases the agreement to provide membership cards, emblems, maps, and signs are never fulfilled. Moreover they imitate the well known trademarks of the bona fide clubs like the A.M.A.

It is estimated that the total collections of the "Gyp" motoring organizations in the United States and Canada exceed $25,000,000 a year.

"If car owners would remember that A.A.A. clubs of which the Alberta Motor Association is one and which now constitute 98 per cent of the functioning motor clubs of the continent are invariably governed and conducted as service and public agencies under the direction of prominent local business and professional leaders they would not fall such easy victims to the fake solicitors and fake salesmen of these fake motoring organizations," a statement of the A.A.A. executive points out.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince of Wales first reference to his accession to the throne made in his speech on Tuesday night at the government dinner in Ottawa has caused much interest here.

The Daily Mail calls it a frank modest speech "worthy of the striking occasion" and adds: "There is not the slightest doubt that when the hour comes for him to assume the honors and burdens of the crown, the Prince will be found fully equal to them. We are convinced that if a plebiscite were taken to elect a representative, who should embody the qualities which we most desire in British manhood the choice would fall upon him, and with justice."

Other newspapers speak in an equally enthusiastic strain.

Practically all of the buildings in the Buffalo park are being painted this season, and Frank Stott has the job well in hand, too.

SEE RULES READY MUSKRAT FARMING

The Dominion government regulations for the proper conducting of muskrat farms in Alberta are expected to be on hand next week, according to word from Ottawa on Saturday last. Hon. Geo. Hoodkoy, who is now in the east in conference with Federal officials on this subject.

Muskrat farming promises to become an extensive and profitable industry in Alberta. Portions of the province are said to be ideal for it and while the Dominion government announced several months ago that water rights to be stipulated lakes, to be added to the province for administration, the industry took a great jump in popularity.

Town's Annual Estimates Approved

The following are the minutes of the regular meeting of the Town Council held in the Council Chamber on Friday last.

Members present: Mayor Forster and Councillors Davison, Morris, Telford and Welch.

The minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and on motion adopted.

Communication from Messrs. Patrinquin and Johnstone, auditors enclosing cash statement up to June 30th as shown by their audit, also the audited statement of July 1st Jubilee Celebration Committee.

Davison-Telford—That the communication be received.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMS RESULTS PUBLISHED

The pupils of the eighth grade who were successful in passing the departmental examinations from Wainwright public schools, are now given out as follows: Crystal Aykroyd, Fred Cooper, Jessie Forster and Florence Murray. Others who were promoted on recommendation of the teacher are: Fred Jones, Margaret Fish, Doris Forster, Muriel Rowe and Evelyn Kemp.

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

Next time you hear a citizen yelping about a typographical error in his home paper, or in any other paper, just hand him these figures to stop his tongue:

In an ordinary column there are 10,000 pieces of type; there are even possible wrong positions for each letter; there are 70,000 chances to make an error, and millions of possible transpositions. In this one sentence, "To be or not to be" by transposition alone it has been figured out 2,759,002 errors can be made.

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel

CHAPTER I

The Forbeses were at it again.

The Randolph Toddhunter Forbes, you know, of Park Avenue and Newport and Southampton and the Berkshire and the North Shore Oh THE Forbes; the R. T. Forbes—Ranny Forbes; and Joan, nee Smethdye of the Brookline Smethdyes of course) whose flashing eloquence of two years before had been the sensation of the high social world, and whose, crashing, scrapes even since were no less the sensation of the idle rich.

Yes, the Forbeses were at it again. Nor the haunting mellow loveliness of the early autumn day nor the satiny green beauty of the Old Westbury polo field felt at the heels of the Jericho Turpin could sweeten the vials of ill-married wrath. Or so often those dirty looks those drier words those dirtiest smiles Verily the Forbeses were at it again.

"The trouble with marriage, said Joan Forbes in the icy remote tones that marriage women use in addressing their husbands and there caddies is that after the wedding most men become husbands."

"Ha! Ha," rasped Ranny swinging off the Turpin with an unguessed suddenness that almost scared the spavined horse of an Italian farmer. "You're just the pink card."

"Any wife is enough to drive any man to drink."

"Ha! Ha now it's my turn to Ha! Ha You never knew a sober day until you married me!"

"Nor a sorry one!" he murmured savagely plunging the Lincoln into a parking place of Ford dimension and jamming his brakes on in time to stop only a scant foot from a chifony group of affrighted Junior Leaguers.

"Down, she hissed, her cheeks a glow of right ahead making a public display of her fiery temper. "EVERYONE"—with a comic shrug of her pretty shoulders—"can judge for themselves why I should get a divorce."

"Well, why don't you get it?"

"Hypocrite! You know full well why I don't. Joan stormed. "It's because you're not man enough to provide me with grounds for divorce. If you were half the man you pretend to be; you'd go to Atlantic City with a chorus girl, or let me find you in your pajamas in some art model's studio. But no you'd rather remain pure but crack. And talk me to death by inches."

"If you ever come to your death through talking it'll be suicide."

Joan's subdued cry marked the climatic height of her inner storm.

"Why don't you give me a divorce?"

"So's that you can marry that?"

Joan paled suddenly. "Who?" she whispered.

"—that—that whom! I know more than I've been letting on! Ranny's emotions were getting a bit out of hand."

"What harm?" raged Joan with a bold front under which she was quakingly wondering if and how he could possibly know.

The boom of a deep voice—rumbled in the tensely charged atmosphere of the luxurious limousine. It was Clay Varick, Ranny's chum, looming his fat shoulders through a door with a grin grinning with shrewd amusement at the flushed and angry countenances.

"Greetings, little love birds," he chorled. "Late as usual. Five minutes more and I'd have called you without you. Ranny much as I'd hate to deprive the Fornades of their fleetest back and the spectators of the sight of their favorite hard-riding and sensational All-American player."

"So please cut short billing and cooing you two—and Ranny come along and select your boy friend for a while, won't you Joan?" he grinned.

Even though he was an old friend Joan glared at Clay with the defensive hostility every married woman harbors toward bachelors. "Take him and lose him—and go along yourself," she cracked.

"What little pebble on the matrimonial sea has this sweet Joan placed surface today?" asked Clay.

"Oh that's always the way with you blasted bachelors. But save your fatish sentiment in Joan's case—she's worth any three heavyweight champions you can name!"

"Then why not hold up her glove and acknowledge your better half?"

"I'm afraid it's too late for a grace. I've surrendered. I've discovered that Joan loves another man!"

Clay stopped dead in his tracks on the turf "Good Lord Ranny, no—not that?"

Ranny shrugged, miserably, silently.

"Who—who is that man?"

"Abner Gratman."

"What? That fortune-hunting shiriner? Why you could break him in pieces with your bare hands."

"What good would it do me? Only serve to rouse Joan's maternal sympathy—for him. She doesn't know yet that I know."

"Gallop out and show your stuff Forbes."

It was Stivner, billionaire lumber magnate, with whom Ranny had been seeking a big business deal. Negotiations were still pending and dubious but Ranny's business sense was gratified at this friendly interest. "I've got a cool fifty thousand wagered on your side," he continued.

"Ranny whistled. 'With whom,' he queried, polite though curious."

"Abner Gratman," declared Stivner.

"Yes with Abner Gratman no less, went on the billionaire. 'Imagine that if your imagination is lively Forbes'."

"We can't imagine it Stivner said Clay. 'Now if this game were to be a fifty-wink'."

"Oh Gratman frankly admitted that it wasn't so much a sporting appreciation of polo that prompted him broke in Stivner. 'But merely to desire to settle a point evident discussion between himself and Mrs. Forbes to flaunt his winnings in her face as proof of his contention that Forbes here is a rotten polo player!'"

Livingstone Stivner meant his jollying all in good part. He could hardly be expected to know that each of his words fell like axe strokes on the raw of Ranny's nerves.

"Ranny huskily took advantage if a chance to excuse himself. Here's my groom."

"Judy's in the finest fettle!" the groom started to say briskly but suddenly switched. "Why sir, what's the matter? You're all white and puffy!"

"Nothing—nothing. What was it you were saying?"

"Well sir, I was saying at 'ow Judy's warmed up quick. You'll myke no mistake to take her first sir."

Full around the field automobiles were jammed hub to hub. Many hundred thousand dollars were represented in that secondary border of steel and glass. Some of the spectators remained seated in their motors to look on but the keener ones tightened around the freshly whitewashed foot high platform. A surge of expectancy waved through the bobbing human in the grand stand.

Ranny immediately broke Judy into a mad gallop and overtook Clay. "Well you heard THAT?"

"Uh huh!" grimly.

By the way where was Gratman sitting?

"There's his roadster back of the west goal—the pretty pretty one in pale yellow. But—he just strolled over and joined Joan in your car."

A miracle of double vision, possible only in a jealous husband.

First he saw the ball rolling towards him neatly passed by a friend; forward; second he saw Abner Gratman laughing at him—A taunting laugh that roused Ranny to his fightingest pride. If that bounding ball had been Abner's bald head Ranny could not have ridden it down harder or smote it with greater gusto.

Straight and true two hundred yards that ball took flight through the tangy air and between the goal posts. A great spray of cheers paid tribute to the incredibility of the shot. Only Ranny and Clay knew that it was not the ball but Abner's head.

That really took the marvelous flight Ranny could not forego a sinisterly triumphant glance toward the sedan and could not but enjoy the crest fallen way in which Abner's face as he watched the flag of the attendant behind the goal signal that the public score was now Argentine, 0; United States, 1; and the private count: Ranny Forbes, 1; Abner Gratman 0.

But the Argentines were mad as devils now, and in Abner Gratman's eyes gleamed the cunning, light of the fox who always has a trump up his sleeve.

"MATINEE LADIES" with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel.

STORY BY

Bob Ward, college student, gets work as a dancing partner for rich women in a New Jersey resort.

There he meets the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on—Sally, the cigarette girl. Recognizing her interest, he courts her against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, his employer's wife, who has her "thrill" in "matinee" Bob for her loveliest apartment.

Mrs. Hammond, a rich hostess, favoring Mattson, a rich visitor. Next day when Bob neglects Mrs. Hammond for Sally, they are rebuked.

Both Sally and Bob, smothered at Madame Leonine's rebuke. Hot rejoiners rose to Bob's lips, which Sally, anticipating by some pre-science, forestalled by laying a restraining hand on him—a cool, florid hand on a white stem of an arm.

Sally then hurried out to her rooming; and Bob, after making ready, followed her, and went directly up to Mrs. Hammond, who was making impatient and resentful under her inscrutable smile.

His physical attention to her during the dance left nothing to be desired; and his spirits had all the charm that, together with his handsome features, had first captured Mrs. Hammond's attention. She was, in part, mollified; assuring herself that after all it would not be so much of a thrill for her, in her new role of hunter, if this good-looking and clean youth were to fall for her at once. That was what all the other men she had ever met had done. She had because Bob had introduced something different into her experience of sex, and with, much that she had been expecting. Now her pride was touched. Her reputation, in her own estimation, which was just how Mrs. Hammond meant to leave him; and which was a tribute to the inexorable success of her skill in the weaving of a cobweb with white, soft threads for links, yielding, but never breaking.

The afternoon had sped by with lightning wings. So perfect a complexion had Mrs. Hammond seen that Bob, in the dazed aftermath that followed her departure as a warm glow lingered about the setting of a hot summer's day sun, felt that barely five minutes had elapsed since she had first caught sight of him. He felt strangely incomplete; as if the going of Mrs. Hammond had frustrated some sort of a fulfillment; a fulfillment that he only subconsciously suspected the need of, and that he vaguely understood.

Journeymen homeward with Sally and his chums. Bob was quiet and preoccupied. He had thought. The boys noticed it, and with the thoughtfulness of youth, teased him.

"The vamp was sure trying hard around your bean this afternoon, old Tom!" laughed Arch.

"Yes, neither of us could get a tumble from her. How did you manage to remember her, Bob?"

"If there's anyone trying any mesmerism, it's her!" protested Ranny. "Now quit teasing Bob, you fellows!"

Bob's eyes were fixed on the distant, added mysteriously. He didn't enjoy dancing with such a brazen person as Mrs. Hammond, but he had to do so what he is getting paid to do."

It was on the tip of Bob's tongue to speak up in defense of Mrs. Hammond; but he just smiled lamely and said to Sally:

"Let the boys have their fun!"

And that was that! Until Bob and Sally, alone, were standing once more in front of the brown stone Smith dwelling, on 103rd Street; when Sally said abruptly:

"Mrs. Hammond has a better line than most of them, hasn't she, Bob?"

"She sure seems to be a brainy woman, Sally," he said, a note of enthusiasm creeping into his voice and hurrying Sally so much as she decided it. She managed to hide her trepidation, however, and listened with a bravely impersonal smile as he concluded: "She knows lots of interesting things about people."

"Maybe!" grunted Sally primly. She wanted to pout, but she felt that she did not know Bob well enough for that. "Yet she's really no better than the others. She's just a chatter. Like the rest of them!"

Bob noted the adorable tilt of her chin, and the sparkle and thrill to the alve of combed blonde hair that waved under his chin as she tossed her exquisite little head. Suddenly the troubled fog in which the afternoon's experience was shrouded cleared away. Sally Smith was the sun; and she alone again in all her virginal brightness to his admiring eyes.

But the Argentines were mad as devils now, and in Abner Gratman's eyes gleamed the cunning, light of the fox who always has a trump up his sleeve.

"MATINEE LADIES" with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel.

STORY BY

Bob Ward, college student, gets work as a dancing partner for rich women in a New Jersey resort.

There he meets the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on—Sally, the cigarette girl. Recognizing her interest, he courts her against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, his employer's wife, who has her "thrill" in "matinee" Bob for her loveliest apartment.

Mrs. Hammond, a rich hostess, favoring Mattson, a rich visitor. Next day when Bob neglects Mrs. Hammond for Sally, they are rebuked.

Both Sally and Bob, smothered at Madame Leonine's rebuke. Hot rejoiners rose to Bob's lips, which Sally, anticipating by some pre-science, forestalled by laying a restraining hand on him—a cool, florid hand on a white stem of an arm.

Sally then hurried out to her rooming; and Bob, after making ready, followed her, and went directly up to Mrs. Hammond, who was making impatient and resentful under her inscrutable smile.

His physical attention to her during the dance left nothing to be desired; and his spirits had all the charm that, together with his handsome features, had first captured Mrs. Hammond's attention. She was, in part, mollified; assuring herself that after all it would not be so much of a thrill for her, in her new role of hunter, if this good-looking and clean youth were to fall for her at once. That was what all the other men she had ever met had done. She had because Bob had introduced something different into her experience of sex, and with, much that she had been expecting. Now her pride was touched. Her reputation, in her own estimation, which was just how Mrs. Hammond meant to leave him; and which was a tribute to the inexorable success of her skill in the weaving of a cobweb with white, soft threads for links, yielding, but never breaking.

The afternoon had sped by with lightning wings. So perfect a complexion had Mrs. Hammond seen that Bob, in the dazed aftermath that followed her departure as a warm glow lingered about the setting of a hot summer's day sun, felt that barely five minutes had elapsed since she had first caught sight of him. He felt strangely incomplete; as if the going of Mrs. Hammond had frustrated some sort of a fulfillment; a fulfillment that he only subconsciously suspected the need of, and that he vaguely understood.

Journeymen homeward with Sally and his chums. Bob was quiet and preoccupied. He had thought. The boys noticed it, and with the thoughtfulness of youth, teased him.

COMMUNITY

FIRST IDEA

An outstanding example of the value of "My community first" idea is a town situated about fifty miles from Wainwright. In this town there is a large departmental store also hardware stores, fruit and confectionery stores, moving-picture houses, lumber yards, implement warehouses, flour and feed stores, gasoline filling stations, hotels and every kind of an established business that goes towards making a town the country dweller's dream. There are doctors, dentists, lawyers and professions represented that are most necessary in any country district.

Yes, and all within fifty miles of the home mail-order houses. How can this be possible, some of you may ask. Simply because the country dwellers know on which side their bread is buttered and appreciate that their farm land investments are only small in proportion to the success of the town and district as a whole.

The merchants are all happy and prosperous, their business has always thrived. The farmers, likewise are happy and prosperous because they too have made a success of their farming. (There must be a real reason for this condition of affairs in this district—there is; the answer is co-operation.)

These successful farmers could appreciate the convenience and value of a good town and they knew that they could not expect to have a good town without their support. The city of Winnipeg meant nothing to them so why help make it prosperous by financial support. Real sensible people who have built up a thriving town and district by being loyal to the town and district. They have never done anything else but prosper in the long run. You may make an immediate saving by sending your money away out of your district for your purchase, but the saving is only immediate and if you and others keep up the practice long enough, you will find it a mighty costly saving.

The prosperous districts are the ones that keep their money at home and do not furnish financial support to the large centres in the form of patronizing mail-order houses. Think it over.

TOWN BUILDING

The most effective way in which to combat the mail-order houses is for the local merchants to use the same methods as they use, and to point out to the buying public the advantages of buying at home. Wainwright is a good town in which to live, it has a big payroll, and there is no reason why the greater part of the money that is spent for the necessities, should not be spent right here. It is very true that people shop where they are invited and the experience of merchandisers is that a percentage of the annual turnover can be profitably spent in newspaper advertising. The way to keep people informed of store values is by advertising in the local newspaper. It cannot be one by word of mouth. It would take too long, and the people are accustomed to reading the printed word and the advertiser's. The Star's policy is to boost for Wainwright 100 per cent. It aims to have every store and business represented in its columns each week, and it should be the policy of every business man to make every effort in his power to develop in as much business as he possibly can in his own particular line. If business men are loyal to each other, and co-operate in developing business in their home town, beneficial results are bound to follow.

The Star is fully convinced that by a persistent policy of co-operation and advertising by business men and determination to serve the public to the best possible advantage that mutual benefit can be obtained for all concerned and an increased volume of business secured. Believe in your own business, in your own town and your own ability to accomplish things, and success is within your reach.

MOVIE PUBLIC TIRED OF "JAZZ STUFF"—ROCK

Motion picture audiences are tiring of the so-called "Jazz films," and are eager to have wholesome romance and adventure, according to Sam E. Rock.

"Any student of motion pictures and the theatre knows that things theatrical run in cycles," declares Rock. "Let a producer stage a successful bedroom comedy and almost overnight there are a dozen more bedroom comedies staged."

"It is the same in pictures. Let one producer make a 'Jazz picture' and the fans flock to it and there is a veritable epidemic staged of 'Jazz'."

"I believe all classes will enjoy real romance and adventure—something if you please that depends on real acting for success."

"That is the reason I was so eager and enthusiastic in the production of 'The Blonde Saint' for First National Pictures to make it a real romance. Motion pictures are supposed to satisfy the public taste. And the average motion picture fan prefers a good story well told," he concluded.

"The Blonde Saint is the feature at the Theatre tonight and tomorrow. Mr. R. Pincott, of Toilets, was a visitor to town for a couple of days last week."

Chevrolet 2-door Sedan Cost

COMPARE THE Chevrolet of seven years ago with the Chevrolet of today and realize how radically Chevrolet has revised all conceptions of motor car value.

In 1920, the Chevrolet illustrated here represented the highest standards of quality and value . . . at a price of $1795 (f.o.b. Oshawa) . . . over a thousand dollars more than you pay today for a Chevrolet that possesses style, luxury and refinement unthought-of in any car a few years ago.

In following its fundamental policy of constant improvement, Chevrolet has built up a production volume which places it first among all cars in the world. And Chevrolet has shared the savings of volume purchasing and production, with the public by reducing the prices of Chevrolet cars.

So, today, you get a Chevrolet with amazing QUALITY in its every detail at a fraction of the cost of a similar model Chevrolet of seven years ago.

Gum-Dipping
 A Firestone Contribution to Economical Travel
 The greatest enemy to tire life is not the chipped-up road, the broken pavement or the harsh grind of rough city streets—but heat, which is created by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber and causes blowouts and tire failures.
 Firestone chemists and engineers know that if they could find a way to eliminate this destructive heat and internal friction, the mileage-giving qualities of tires would be greatly increased. Such a method was found and called "Gum-Dipping."
 The Gum-Dipping process is one of Firestone's contributions to economical travel—in insulates and impregnates every fiber of every cord with rubber, reducing internal friction and at the same time binding the cords together by a stronger union of rubber, thus giving greater strength and flexibility to the tire.
 Firestone dealers everywhere—familiar with Gum-Dipping and its advantages—will gladly explain how thousands of extra miles are built into Firestone tires by this exclusive method. Take advantage of the Gum-Dipping process to lower your tire costs this year.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST

BORN—To Mr and Mrs B. Veitch on August 5th, a girl

Mrs Pat Murray is here from the city on a visit to her mother Mrs R. Aykroyd for a visit

Mr W. Hibberd has now moved here from Biggar, and has taken up residence in the Armstrong block

Mr D. Wade is here from Calgary on a visit to his parents for a holiday

The dining room at the Wainwright hotel is again open Mrs Sheek of Camrose having arrived last week end to take charge It is claimed the meals are "just like mother used to make"

Miss Marion Limpert, who lived here for several years, is here for a holiday from Edmonton. She is the guest of Mrs A. Watson.

After a pleasant holiday of several weeks with relatives at Calgary Mrs W. Robinson returned home last week end

***Farmers! You will need a granary for two this fall to take care of your crop Why not build it now and have it all ready when the threshers get to your place. You can obtain lumber and labor now; it will be scarce later on! The Atlas Lumber Co. anticipated this crop and have a large stock of material for this work in the yards. Phone 57, we'll put you right

A large number of our town folk visited the big annual fair at Vermillion on Friday last, and report a good time there.

Mr Arthur Wright, an old "side-kicker" of the Editor's was in town over the week end on a visit to relatives. He motored back with his family on Monday.

Don't be late for the Big Elk's picnic at Mott lake today. The town band will be on deck, too! to liven things up! Big supper at 6 p.m. Sports 'n everything!

Mrs Art Uren is entertaining as her guests this week Mrs E. Condon from Vancouver, as well as Mrs and Miss B. Knight and Mr J. McDonald of Edmonton.

Mr J. Montgomery autowed down from Edmonton last Friday and returned with his family, who have been visiting Mrs H. Montgomery on Sunday morning

We learn that Miss K. Dawson, from Fleet, Alta, and Miss C. Dixon from Buffalo View, have been hired by the School Board to fill the vacancies on the staff for the opening of the new term.

Quite a large sum was raised for church purposes on Sunday when the Catholic ladies staged a big chicken supper at Clear Lake. A big crowd was on hand to enjoy the proceedings

***Watch for handbills on "Factory to You" Sale at Wainwright Pharmacy, August 20th to 31st

Mrs H. Fieldhouse is entertaining a guest this week in the person of her brother who arrived on Saturday last

***We have unloaded five carloads of granary material, and you can find here everything you want to take care of your crop Phone Joe Welch at the Atlas yard

Introducing The New Vogue

Interior Color Harmonies that match the lovely effect of the Drawing Room

MCLAUGHLIN-BUICK for 1928 sets a new vogue in motor car design—

Rich fabrics, covering walls and ceilings, blend pleasantly with exterior finishes, forming a neutral background for matching or contrasting interior effects.

Form-fitting tailored seats are upholstered in attractive materials of the finest quality. Carpets of pleasing pattern add a touch of lively color. Even the interiorware is carefully selected for its decorative effect, that the complete ensemble may be in perfect taste.
